12 PLAYERS TO WATCH AT THE WORLD CUP

LIONEL MESSI Argentina Who else but arguably the greatest player of all time. Having come close to lifting the cup in 2014, Qatar 2022 will be Messi's last chance to crown a glorious career with what would be his greatest triumph.	CRISTIANO RONALDO Portugal International football's record goal scorer will once again be his country's talisman and will look to leave a lasting mark on what is surely his last World Cup appearance.	KYLIAN MBAPPE France Star of France's 2018 World Cup win, the world's "next best player" will look to prove that he is the undisputed heir to Messi and Ronaldo.	HARRY KANE England Any hopes the Three Lions have of progressing to the final stages of the tournament will like at Russia 2018, rest on Kane being at the top of his game.	PEDRI Spain The 19-year-old Barcelona playmaker is already a veteran of last year's Euros, and this could be the tournament Pedri announces himself as one of the world's best midfielders.	NEYMAR JR. Brazil After mixed performances in previous tournaments, this could be Neymar's final chance to finally join the greats of world football.	SALEM AL-DAWSARI Saudi Arabia Already a scorer at the last World Cup in Russia, Al-Dawsari will be the key player if the Green Falcons are to cause an upset in a very tough group.	ABDERRAZAK HAMDALLAH Morocco A goal-scoring machine in the Saudi Pro League, Hamdallah could now introduce himself to a worldwide audience after getting a late recall to the Moroccan squad.	AKRAM AFIF Qatar One of a clutch of talented Aspire Academy graduates, Afif could well emerge as the host nation's biggest hope of a successful debut tournament.	KEVIN DE BRUYNE Belgium The Premier League's best player will be leading a Belgium team once again expected to be among the dark horses at the World Cup.	ROBERT LEWANDOWSKI Poland Long considered the world's best No. 9, the Barcelona forward will look to lead his country to success against more fancied opponents.	HANNIBAL MEJBRI Tunisia Manchester United's talented and distinctive looking 19-year-old is shining in the Championship on loan at Birmingham City, and a star turn in Qatar will ensure a swift return to the heights of the Premier League.
